Aviation's Benefit for Florida

Florida's economic well-being is intrinsically entwined with its vibrant airport system and its robust aviation industry. The aviation system in Florida allows the state to capitalize on an increasingly global marketplace. Aviation in Florida both sustains and leads economic growth and development. Airports in Florida are important economic engines, and support vital health, welfare, emergency, and safety-related services.

Florida's system of commercial service and general aviation airports are important to businesses throughout the state. Air travel is essential to tourism, Florida's number one industry. Protecting and investing in airports throughout Florida will support the aviation industry and the economic benefits described in this report. With continued support, Florida's dynamic aviation system will continue to provide a significant economic return in the years to come.

Ft. Lauderdale Executive Airport

Located in Broward County, approximately five miles north of downtown Fort Lauderdale, Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport serves a variety of general aviation activities. With its two intersecting runways, the longest of which is 6,002 feet, the airport can accommodate general aviation business jet aircraft. The airport's five fixed base operators (FBOs) are ideal for serving local users as well as those visiting the area.

Fort Lauderdale Executive's FBOs include Aero Toy Store, Banyan, Sano Aviation, W Aviation, and World Jet. The airport serves as a corporate aviation and charter flight center for South Florida. There is also a notable volume of air ambulance and medical activity, flight training, recreational flying, and real estate and sightseeing tours that take place at the airport. All of the airport's tenants and flight activities are important to the airport's revenue streams and economic impact.

The annual economic impact of Fort Lauderdale Executive Airport is associated with direct impacts that come from tenants/businesses located at the airport and construction projects that are undertaken by the airport or by on-site businesses. Indirect impacts are associated with spending from visitors who arrive in the area via general aviation aircraft.
